Fire in Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 21st.—Fully one half of the city hall in ruins. The fire broke out in the house occupied by B. Sabaurin on Bridge street this afternoon, owing to the high winds it spread rapidly in both Northerly and Easterly direction, despite every means available the flames could not be checked, and building after building destroyed.

Beaconsfield's Resignation Accepted.

WINDSOR CASTLE, April 21st.—The Queen has accepted the resignation of Lord Beaconsfield as Prime Minister, and has sent a special message to Lord Hartington, desiring his attendance at Castle Lord Hartington will leave London for Windsor almost immediately.

Canady Says it is Sherman.

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 20.—The Star publishes and interview with Mr. W. P. Canady, the recognized leader of the Sherman movement in this State, in which Canady claims out of sixteen delegates to the Chicago Convention already chosen there will be thirteen for Sherman three for Grant and four yet to be chosen.

The Queen's Movements.

LONDON, April 21st.—Lord Hartington went to Windsor Castle alone, and it is believed in political circles, that he will advise the Queen to summon Mr. Gladstone to form the Cabinet. The Evening Standard says the Queens messenger after delivering the dispatch to Lord Hartington this morning, proceeded to the residence of Earl Granville, but it is uncertain whether the latter has also been summoned to Windson Castle or not.

Skil Robbers.

LONDON, April 20.—A post office official has been arrested on suspicion of complicity in the recent diamond robbery at the Cape Town Postoffice. Some person, supposed to have been secreted in the General Postoffice building, obtained access to the registered mail bag from Kimberly, and deliberately emptied all the sealed packets of diamonds, carrying off the whole of their contents, estimated variously at from £30,000 to £50,000, the principal part of which was covered by insurance. The robbery was evidently done by one well acquainted with the manner in which the diamond parcels are made up, for the ordinary registered letters were left uninjured. The total weight of the packets rifled are said to be thirty pounds. They formed part of the mail dispatched from the diamond fields on the 4th of March, but arrived too late for the last outgoing English steamer, and were to have been forwarded by the steamer Pertoria.

A SOUND MYSTERY.

An Unknown Schooner Sinks with All on Board.

Capt. Melville, of the Schooner Telegraph, of Thomaston, Me., reports that on the 13th inst., while pasaing up the Long Island Sound and when about four miles west of Old Fields' Point he saw a schooner of 80 to 100 tons go down with all on board.

The vessel, which was apparently bound East, was but a few hundred yards ahead of the Telegraph when she was noticed suddenly to lower her sails and almost immediately disappear, going down headforemost. Capt. Melville is in doubt as to whether she split open or ran under.

Quite a heavy sea was on at the time and the night was very dark. He, however, distinguished the forms of three men clinging to the rigging.

When the Telegraph reached the spot where the ill-fated vessel was seen to go down, nothing was picked up but a dog struggling in the sea. The animal was taken aboard of the Telegraph.

The lost vessel probably carried a crew of at least a captain and five men

A CHELSEA HORROR.

A Young Man Erects a Guillotine with Which He Ends His Life.

BOSTON, April 20.—Two days ago a farmer named Pillsbury, of Chelsea, had occasion to go to Newburyport, and he left his son, Stephen M., thirty years of age, in charge of the farm. When Mr. Pillsbury returned, about noon yesterday, he looked in vain for his son. Mr. Pillsbury approached the barn, unlocked the door, and in a moment thereafter a horrible sight met his gaze. On the floor was the body of his son, with the head almost completely severed from the body.

The instrument of death was a perfectly executed guillotine, which the ingenious suicide had probably spent a month in manufacturing. The machine consisted of two perpendicular pieces of joists about two feet apart and reaching from the floor to the roof of the barn. About six feet from the floor had had been adjusted in a piece of wood a large, sharp axe, so that it moved up and down in a groove. This axe was held in its place by a water pot filled with water, attached to a lever, which in turn was made to support the axe. A hole had been made in the water-pot, so that when sufficient water had leaked from it to overcome the leverage above, the axe would fall. When all arrangements had been made the young man got upon his knees, and putting his head through an aperture made at the bottom, calmly awaited death. He had previously supplied himself with about two pounds of ether and while the water was slowly dripping from the pot he placed the ether to his mouth. When found, the head was only hanging to the body by a small piece of flesh.

A WEALTHY FARMERS DOWNFALL

Running Away with his Stepson's Wife and Afterwards Murdering her.

A telegram to the Chicago Times from Kansas City says: "The simple announcement a few days ago of the murder of a woman named Thomas by Sam Broomfield, in Colfax, Weshington Territory, was explained to-day in detail to your correspondent by Mrs. Broomfield, the wife of the murderer. She says that the murdered woman is Mrs. Frank Thanks nee Miss Edrington, formerly living near Independence Mo. She was married to Broomfield's stepson in 1876, soon after which the young couple went to Broomfield's house to live. Broomfield, up to the time of the marriage of his stepson, was a highly esteemed and wealthy farmer, a steward in the Methodist Church, and was considered a most honorable man. He was a hard worker and was noted as a thorough business man. As soon as the bridal couple took up a permanent residence in his house he fell violently in love with his stepson's wife. Broomfield was forty-nine and Mrs. Shanks was sixteen, but notwithstanding the disparity in years, she returned his passion, caressing him so much even in the presence of the other members of the family, that Mrs. Broomfield insisted that she should leave the house. Frank finally solved the difficulty by taking his wife to texas but was induced to return by Broomfield to testify in a lawsuit. Soon after arriving at the farm near Kansas City a deputy marshal appeared with a warrant of arrest for him on a charge of rape, and the innocent victim of what afterward was ascertained to be a foul conspiracy was obliged to hide in the brush, pursued and hunted by a posse. Broomfield still pretended to be his friend, although he was really his enemy, and persuaded him to send for his wife. As soon as she arrived Broomfield advised his stepson to fly, and then took the wife as a mistress. For three years he continued his course, and finally ended it last summer by running away with her, selling his property and leaving his wife penniless. After reaching Washington Territory Broomfield's mistress fell in love with another man named Thomas, and gave him a large sum of money which she obtained from Broomfeld, on learning which, the latter murdered her in cold blood."

THE BLUNDER ON THE BOSTONA.

Adelaide Neilson's Leading Man Ejected from Her State-Room.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sunday a week ago Miss Adelaide Neilson, accompanied by her maid and the leading man of her company, Mr. Compton, took passage on the steamer Bostona, for Huntington, en route for White Sulphur Springs, in Virginia. After supper, to escape the gaze of a number of passangers who seemed unable to take their eyes off her, and treated her as though she was on exhibition, she retired to her state-room, to which she invited Mr. Compton, for company's sake. Shortly after she was summoned to the door of her room by an officer of the boat and informed that it was contrary to the rules for a gentleman to visit a lady in her state-room. Miss Neilson protested against this ruling, where upon the Captain of the steamer was summoned. He rather roughly insisted upon the observance of the rules. and of course carried his point. A contemporary published an exaggerated account of the affairs, omitting the names of the parties. When the boat arrived here after the occurrence a reporter endeavored to get at the facts in the case, but the Captain and Clerk declined to talk, and evidently felt that they had made a mistake in disturbing the lady. We requested Miss Neilson to give us her version of the affair. and last night we received a letter from her in which she says: "The details of the incident are few and simple. Between seven and eight o'clock on Sunday evening Mr. Compton and myself were seated in my stateroom reading over the prison scene from Measure for Measure, which we produce in Boston for the first time this season on Monday next. While going over the lines, a deck-hand knocked at the door, and inquireing for Mr. Compton, said that the clerk wished to see him. Upon Mr. Compton's going to the clerk, that gentleman told him he was violating the rules of the boat by being in a lady's cabin. On Mr. Compton's informing me of this fac., I protested against such arbitrary treatment, and was just sending for the Captain when that official appeared. I told him that I never had similar experience in all my travels here and in Europe, but this statement had no effect, and after repeated assurances that the rules must be observed, Mr Compton and myself left the state-room and walked the deck for two hours or more talking over the business of the play, This is the whole story and you can judge for yourself whether it furnishes sufficient ground for the insinuations which a few unscrupulous papers have not hestitated to publish." In this connection it may be proper to state Miss Neilson's offense seems to have been that she is a very beautiful and noted lady. She is a thorough woman of the world, sharp and shrewd in business matters, as she is great in her art; and those who think that she would be foolish enough to violate any published regulation or law of a steamer are too silly to waste words on. The fact of the matter is that the captain of the Boston failed to have copies of the laws governing the conduct of passengers conspicuously displayed in the cabin, and Miss Neilson was unaware that the rules applying to guests in first-class hotels did not prevail as well on steamers. Knowing that she had not been guilty of any impropriety, she naturally resented the insult implied by the visit of the clerk and captain. Had these gentlemen been half as energetic in keeping Miss Neilson's fellow-passengers from staring her out of countenance in the public cabin she would most probably not have sought the seclusion of her state-room until ready to retire for the night.

Agriculture.

The Boston Journal of Chemistry says agriculture is so fascinating, so noble, so grand in all its relations and bearings, that all classes of readers, if they do not own a rod of land, are fond of agricultural literature. There are but very few in any of the professions, or in any of the industrial pursuits, who do not cherish a secret hope or expectation that some day the will own a farm and till it, and die upon it. As people grow older they love to think of mother earth; they love to look upon broad acres covered with the bounteous gifts of a kind Providence; they love to hear the birds sing; they love to look up into the heavens broad and expansive; they love to bathe in sunlight and feel the mild breezes of summer laden with sweet odors from woods and flowers. Young men often say they hate farming, and all that is connected with the pursuit. They would, like John Randolph, go out of their way a mile to kick a sheep; and, as to cows, oxen, and all animals, but a horse, they never wish to look upon them. If they live to middle life, they "meet with a change," and, if their success has been indifferent in whatever pursuit they may have fallen into, then the wish is heard expressed that they had remained upon the farm. The tilling of the soil is a glorious calling, and, depend upon it, young men, the time is coming when it will be more remunerative than most trades and professions.

Moody and Sankey.

New Orleans Democrat.

At noon yesterday the last of the exercises by Messrs. Moody and Sankey took place at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association. The hall was crowded to its utmost and the seats were mainly occupied by ladies, the gentlemen occupying the aisles and hugging the sides of the door.

After the opening prayer, Mr. Sankey, presiding at the piano, conducted the singing, in which the congregation freely joined.

The ssrmon was preached by Mr. Moody in his customary conversational way, illustrating everything by facts and incidents which are common to the experience of everybody, though not apt to strike unless suggested. The subject was "Love," or the affection and duty owed by their fellows, and his arguments were as convincing as his manner was unostentatious.

This morning the celebrated evangelists leave for Galveston. and will thence preceed on a tour through Texas. They expressed themselves highly gratified with their reception in New Orleans.

THE Philadelphia Times says:

"Sooner or later the Democrats will have to choose bet ween Tilden and success. They can't have both."

NEWS FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENTS.

Death of Mrs. Milly Clark--Fruits in Person County nearly all Killed, Etc.

HALIFAX.

Correspondence of the News.

WELDON, N. C., April 20th, 1880.—Died on the 2nd day of April 1880, at the residence of her father, G. L. Lynch, Sr. Mrs. Milly Clark, the consort of Thomas A. Clark, Esq., of Weldon, N. C.

The subject of this notice, who was born on the 16th day of July 1849, came of a family whose history began with the American Colonies. Her father representing in his person that stern roman integrity, which, unfortunately, is becoming a tradition, her mother all the virtues that adorn woman hood tutored by such teachers, this bright child soon became the favorite of the most exacting of all friends, her schoolmates, gentle, genial, nothing seemed to annoy her. She was incapable of anger, and the writer of these lines can not recall a sharp or unkind word that escaped her during a period of over two years, in which he was a schoolmate and class mate. Her womanhood was the generous out-come of such a girl-hood, noble and christian.

A writer of great force and extreme purity, her pen contributed many articles that graced the pages of Appleton. And had she devoted her time to literary pursuits, would have won a place in the front ranks of that sisterhood which has done such noble work in vindicating Southern home-life. But this could not be, other duties claimed her. In Oct. 1871, she married Thomas A. Clark, Esq., himself, a man of culture and fine literary attainments.

To her married life--which was all too short for earth, she wrought that rich store she had heretofore gathered. In her new relation she was conspicuous for her unostentatious deeds of charity, and her acts of neighborly kindness. In 1878 she was attacked by consumption, and then began to show itself that beautiful christian submission which marked her life a bright example, for her death had no terrors, and as the Great Healer opened her gate, the lips that had never murmured against pain, parted with bright smiles, and her soul passed to heaven.

To her family and friends she has left the memory of a life as faultless as human life can be, and in their sorrows over her grave they have a communities sympathy.

PERSON COUNTY.

ROXBORO, April 19th.—The dry spell now upon us has no parallel in the month of April, within the memory of our oldest citizens. All kinds of vegetation is suffering, and the flies are playing havoc with the tobacco plants. The ground is so hard that it can't be ploughed, when it has not been previously broken, and a great deal of the corn land is just in that fix. There are some peaches alive, but the crop will be short. The cherries, pears and plums are nearly all killed.

The county is full of measles, roseola, and whooping cough, and Roxboro is almost an infirmary as to measles. There has been nothing like it since the war. I have heard of but one death from measles, Mr. Featherston, an estimable young man on the upper Hyco.

Mr. Thos. H. Brooks, living two miles southwest of Roxboro, aged about sixty-five, died on last Friday, the 16th at his home, of typhoid pneumonia. Mr. B. was a good citizen, in independent circumstances, had been twice married, left a widow, one son, and three or four daughters, all grown and some married and settled in life. He was a man who could feel for another's woes, and would afford the needful aid where others professing a much higher degree of sanctity, like the self-righteous Pharisee, would pass by "on the other side."

Active preparations are going on to build up the waste places of Roxboro occasioned by the big fire last winter. The vacant lots will be rebuilt with brick. Efforts are also being made to build a Baptist Church in the town, but the work has not yet commenced.

There has been considerable excitement in the whisky department of the county for some two weeks, growing out of the seizure of a wagon and team with crooked whiskey in Orange county, alleged to belong to W. H. Winstead; but after a thorough investigation of Mr Winstead's establishment, I understand that nothing wrong was discovered, and matters have settled down to their normal condition. Two little establishments were found in the country, engaged in making crooked whiskey; but if any irregularity has been discovered in the registered distilleries, I have not heard it; and while the Revenue officers who have been making these recent investigations have been diligent, I have heard of no excess or abuse of power on their part.

L.

BUNCOMB COUNTY.

ASHEVILLE, April, 20th, 1880.—This day, one week ago found the writer at Brevard Transylvania county, the best immortalized part of the "Land of the Sky." Transylvania county if not the the grandest, is certainly the most beautiful part of Western Carolina. The county is confined almost entirely to the valley of the French-Broad and no contrast conld be greater, than that, that exist between the valleys of the lower and upper parts of this river. The lower as it winds its way through the county of Madison is for miles and miles nothing more than a basin for the water to flow through, and a rough one at that, hemmed in on either side by precipices so steep that they at all times seem ready to toppie into the stream below; while the upper is broad and furtile ready ranging from one half mile to one and a half miles in width, bounded in the distance, tis true, by steep and high mountains, but more nearly rolling elevations of from fifty to one hundred feet in height above the river. Many of their near knolls are now dotted with splendid looking residences looking at them from the distance, but a near approach will show, in nine cases out of ten, that the magnificence of the place so far as appearances are concerned has long since vanished. There structures were erected where they stand, principally by wealthy South Carolinians; who before the war came up there and purchased these lands, and built these houses, in order that they might have for themselves summer residences. The county though not now in as prosperous a condition as she once was, bears marks of improvements. The river which is being cleaned out by the government for the purpose of navigation is reaching completion which when done will give the county direct communication with the railroad. A new court house is being constructed and nearing completion which would do credit to any county in the state, and is to be followed by a jail.

Burard, the county seat, is a small town of about two hundred inhabitants, so new that it is situated almost in the woods, and besides the improvements before spoken of, has lately had erected in her midst a magnificent new church, and several dwelling houses.

Court, which began at this place on Monday of last week, Judge Schenck presiding, adjourned on Thursday, the dockets both civil and criminal being quite small.

Horatio Seymour's Career.

New York Sun.

Is it necessary that a man should be a candidate in order to be nominated for the Presidency? Has the office sunk so low that no man is to be considered available for it unless he has put a machine in operation to capture it? Horatio Seymour was never a candidate for anything. Every office he has held came to him unsought. As far back as 1845, he was talked of for speaker of the assembly. Silas Wright was governor. Mr. Seymour went to him and said: "My name has been mentioned for speaker. If it will embarrass your administration in the slightest degree to have me occupy the place, or if for any reason you prefer that another candidate should be chosen, just say the word and I will retire from the field." But Wright did not say the word and Seymour was elected. In 1850, when the the two hostile wings of the Democracy came together in the State, Seymour was nominated for governor. But he was not a candidate then. In 1852 he was renominated and elected, but without an effort on his own part, and hardly with his own consent. In 1854 he was very anxious to retire, but was driven into running again. The only time that he ever desired an office (even if he did then), was in 1862. He saw and appreciated the necessity of leading the party in the right direction on the war issue. He was a Union man, and he was resolved that the Democracy of New York should be a Union party, whatever it cost. He ran willingly and was elected. But in 1864 he unqualifiedly refused a renomination. It was only when McClellan's friends peremptorily demanded that he should sacrifice all personal considerations to the good of the cause, that he consented to staud. No man who followed the course of events in 1863 needs to be told that Governor Seymour was not then a candidate for the Presidency. The nomination was forced upon him in a way that admitted of no honorable withdrawal. and he consented to run. He will not now engage in a scramble for the Presidential nomination. If others want the place, they can have it for all of him. He meets all overtures with the frank and truthful statement that he is not a candidate. But if the convention nominates him, he will not decline. This is his position, as defined by Senator Kernan and others whose relations with him are most intimate and who have never yet mistaken in regard to his true position. He is indisputably the strongest man in the party. For thirty years he was the friend and associate of Tilden. There has never been a difference between them on questions of public policy. He supported Tilden in his fight against Tweed and in his war on the canal ring. With the exception of a little knot of personal followed, Tildens friends are his friends. Moreover he can unite in his support the entire Democratic party. His nomination would be so wise that unless Mr. Tilden is bent on sacrificing success to his grievances, it will come about in the natural order of events.

Ben Hill--The Senator On the War path.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Senator Ben Hill, of Georgia, is not willing to allow the Jessie Raymond case to rest until the merits of the controversy can be settled by the courts here where the suit is now pending, but has written a letter to a Georgia paper in which he bitterly assails Senator Kellogg, the Northern newspaper-press, and the Democratic party. The assumes to be a private one to a personal friend who authorizes its publication. These are his points: He will claim that the scandal with which his name has been connected simply proceeds from the noisy clamor of a wicked crew. A conspiracy was formed against him six months ago in Georgia to make it appear that he was the father of the Raymond child. This failed, and the conspiracy was renewed here. Detectives were used, and the keeper of an assignation house was offered $500 to make affidavit that Hill was a visitor there. This she declined to do. Several women, professing to be very handsome, wrote him seeking appointment. He rejected them with plantonic disdain. Finally one came.

IN THE GUISE OF A SENATOR'S WIFE

who, he claims, was in Kellogg's interest. The Raymond woman was brought here an employed by political opponents to injure him. She was instructed, and agreed, to insult his wife to haunt him, and finaly to shoot him She was promised protection, and informed that the Republican party would provide for her at a rate of $100 monthly. The newspapers were allied against him. Some of these wretched conspirators are newspaper corresponents, "All the scoundrels," he says, "will find out in time that there is only one possible way to prevent me (Hill) from doing my duty, and that one way is to kill me. Not less than four of the scoundrels who have been most active against me have offices in the Treasury; nearly all of them here are in favor with this administration. and especially with the head of the Treasury Department. They nearly all belong to infamous Louisiana villians, and Mr. Haves seems to have no power to resist their demands I had rather be able to than to be President and in power of such a gang." Senator Hill concludes with the regretful statement that the Democratic party has in it many very small men in very high position, who are keeping the party distracted with small question, and who have no capaity except to make large pretentions to magnify small issues, and to keep themselves puffed in newspapers as prodigies of great statemanship. "Small jealousies, little spites, and disgraceful jobs," he says "are destroying the energies of the Democratic party." To this passage of the letter there will probably be little dissent here or elsswhere.

THE LABOR OUTLOOK.

THE SENTIMENT OF THE WORKING CLASS.

A Great Demand for Domestic Servants Higher Wages or No Work.

N. Y. Mail.

The general demand for higher wages is by no means confined to the representatives of mechanical labor, the "wages boom" having extended to domestics as well. The applications for servants are greatly on the increase. and at the present time the various intelligence and servants registry office are crowded throughout the day by those who want situations.

Good servants and particularly those who can produce references are quickly engaged at their own wages, while those who have to be taken on "spec" are not kept long waiting for a place.

A reporter for the Evening Mail visited a number of the best registry offices on Sixth, Fourth and Third avenues yesterday and found them all doing a good business. The attendants agreed in saying that they had not had such a run for servants in many years.

Said the keeper of one of the largest offices, "The supply of good cooks is not up to the demand. Only a short time ago we had score of them on our books, but that is not the case now."

"How about their wages?" was asked.

"They are going up every month slightly The girls will not hire themselves out unless they get what they want, particularly those of the lower class of servants. Those who are anxious to get into good families are not so obstinate, as they know they can get an increase afterwards if they are servants and know how to conduct themselves.

During the last five years good cooks could be had from $12 to $17 a month. Now they are receiving from $15 to $20 a month easily. Chambermaids and waitresses, who of late averaged $10, are now getting $12 and $14, and nurse girls about $10 per month.

"Housekeepers who were getting from $20 to $30 are now being engaged for about one-third more, and so on with the rest of the employees, whether male or female. Thus you can form your own idea as to the business we are doing."

"What nationality is most preferred?"

"Well, the Irish are the most sought after, and they by far outnumber those of any other country. When they are good girls they are generally liked, and the old saying that 'No Irish need apply,' has become pretty well extinguished. The German families prefer, as a rule, those of their own country, as the majority keep up their mother tongue while about the house. Then we notice that they do not stay so long in a place as the English or Irish. They want more liberty and do not care about working hard. A good English servant can always get employment owing to the discipline they undergo in their country. Then there are a number of French girls, but they do not emigrate in the same number as other nationalities. They come mostly from Alsace and the south of France. They are generally hired as sewing girls, nurses, and to travel with families. Our own American girls are not much sought after, for two reasons: the majority of them are not strong enough to do their work, and they are too fond of dress. They prefer standing in a store all day or work in a factory. It seems an infatuation which they cannot overcome."

In addition to the up-town offices there are a number in the lower part of the city for those who are employed in restaurants and small hotels and lodging houses.

Kitchen girls get about $10 or $12 a month, second girls from $8 to $10; chambermaids $7 to $10, in addition to what they make in the shape of perquisites; landresses from $14 to $16, and waitresses who lodge out of the house from $3 to $7 per week.

At the Castle Garden Labor Bureau girls are eagerly sought after for city or country engagements, and are taken at only a little below the wages paid those who have lived in this country many years.

The Missouri Tornado.

N. Y. Mail.

The terror of the tornado which tore its way along the James river and the St. Louis and San Franciso Railway, Sunday evening, almost destroying the whole town of Marshfield, something more than two hundred miles from St. Louis, exceeded that of the most of the tornadoes which have been known in the West. Although Marshfield is a town of considerable importance, there are few of its buildings uninjured, and a large part of them are prostrated, and fire broke forth amid the fury of the storm to add to the awfulness of the scene. The reports that seventy-eight persons were killed and two hundred others injured, many of them fatally, may prove no exaggeration of the disaster, and the horror of the inhabitants of the stricken town must have been as great as peril and death ever bring to mortals. The instantaneous shock of the railway disaster gives the victims little time to suffer, and hardly enough to perceive their peril; but the Missouri tornado gave the people of Marshfield the torture of impending death for one terrible hour, in which the storm continued to beat and the fire to rage. The sight which met those people of Springfield, twenty-four miles away, who soon after midnight took the train to go to the relief of the wounded and the dying, must have been one of the most appalling human eyes ever beheld.

Fierce storms swept over many parts of the West during Sunday night and Monday morning, Illinois, Iowa and Indiana suffering most severely. The destruction of property at several points has been considerable, although it is to be wondered that such furious gales were not more destructive. Lake Michigan was stirred to its depths, and had not most of the vessels sought a harbor, or the protection of the western shore, the wrecks and loss of life would certainly have been great. Canada, too, was visited in some parts by a terrific storm during Monday, and the prevalence of destructive gales over so large an area is extraordinary. It would be fortunate were some student of nature able to reveal the law of the tornadoes which so frequently devast and destroy in the West, but for the present such visitations must be set down as one of those ills to which the inhabitants of certain States are exposed, of whose approach they can have no warning, and from whose power there can be no human deliverance.

Joseph K. Emmet, the former negro minstrel; and now the prosperous actor of German-American characters has accumulated a large fortune within a few years. He has bought a place on the Hudson, near Albama, and began the erection of a magnificent residence There is a large music room, furnished with an immense orchestrion; the parlor is modeled after that of an English manor, with timbered roof; every room in the main story is an octagon, with a bay window and balcony. A feature of the grounds will be a big windmill of the Dutch sort which will pump water for a picturesque cascade.

Jesting Disraeli and Serious Gladstone.

From The Gentleman's Magazine.

When Lord Beaconsfied sat on the Treasury bench, the dullest always had a rouse of interest. No one knew that the Premier might not interpose, and no one could imagine what he would say if he did. His resource was failing and his audacity untameable. In whatever mood he might be he was interesting. He never laughed himself, but he wasacause of constant laughter in others. Sometimes, when he assumed that solemn mask from behind which he was wont to give tongue to vague and solemn generalities, he was laughed at. Oftener he was laughed with, and by mere audacity he often succeeded in turning into jest a situation which promised to be full of danger.

There is a phrase already become a colloquialism, which illustrates this rare and great gift of governing. People often write or say "a great deal has happened since then," and think they are quoting Lord Beaconsfield. It is near enough for all practical purposes; but whilst the precise wording of the aphorism has been lost, the circumstances that gave it birth have long since been forgotten. It was on the 15th of April, 1874, that the House was crowded in expection of seeing the Premier floored on what was certainly an awkward point. The new Government had not been long in office, and Parliament had scarcely settled down to work. During the election contest, the turmoil of which was only just subsiding, the then candidate for Buckinghamshire forgot the possibilities of responsibility, and in more than one speech alluded to the Coercion Acts, which he denounced as "the most stringent and severe known in any part of the world." Lord Robert Montagu had hung up these speeches, and had given notice that he would ask the Prime Minister whether it was true that he had thus alluded to the Coercoin Acts, and if so, whether he considered that such Acts were necessary for the rule of Ireland by a British Parliament.

This was just one of those questions that Mr. Gladstone would have blundered over. He would have treated the matter with supreme gravity, and would have argued at some length in support of the Acts. What Lord Beaconsfield would do in these circumstances was anticipated with the liveliest interest. Lord Robert Montagu put the question amid the profound silence of a crowded House. The Premier, approaching the table and pulling himself together with the familiar shrug of the shoulders, said, with inimitable voice and manner. It is some time ago since the observation referred to by the Noble Lord were made; and," he added, dropping his voice, "a good deal has happened in the interval." The House burst into a roar of laughter, amid which the Premier, with a face solemn to the point of ingubriousness, resumed his seat. Lord Robert Montagu was savage beyond control at the easy manner in which the fish that almost seemed to be in his landing-net had escaped. He rose and insisted upon having a more definite reply, but the Premier had drawn the House with the bait of a jest. Lord Robert Montague shouted in vain against the cries of "Order!" that came from all parts of the House.

As for the Premier, he was not the man to sport a success by an additional word. Whilst Lord Robert Montagu fumed and shouted, and the House roared, Mr. Disraeli, with one hand lightly reposing in his waistcoat and the other holding a copy of the "Orders," sat with one leg crossed over the other, regarding the lighted ceiling with an absent air. This is but one instance a score that recur to the memory in looking back at the time, that seems already so far distant, when Mr. Disraeli led the House of Commons.

In this first session of the new Parliament the position of Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons must have been painful to himself as it was embarrassing to everyone else. No one quite understood it; and the House of Commons may be forgiver if, after for at least 20 years owing his supremacy, it was not readily to be brought to consider him as holding second rank; or even as not having a commission at all. Circumstances, moreover were further complicated just then by a sore bitterness existing between Liberal members and their late leader. Members could forgive much to their great chief; but they could not forget the inconvenience and even danger to which he had submitted them by reason of the suddenness of the dissolution.

This feeling found expression toward the end of April, 1874, when Mr. Smollett brought on in the shape of a motion what was practically a vote of censure on Mr. Gladstone for "the abrubt dissolution of the late Parliament." This again was one of those things Mr. Disraeli would have managed much better than Mr. Gladstone. The gentleman who undertook to bring the matter under the notice of Parliament was himself guilty of grievous presumption. He was a new member, and so far from peronally suffering from the circumstance he deplored he had found a seat as a consequeuce of it. Mr. Disraeli would probably have made a little jest in this direction if indeed he had noticed the matter at all), and there the thing would have ended. But here was Mr. Gladstone making an infrequent appearance on the Opposition bench with a sheet of notes in hand listening with the quickest attention to the coarse vituperation of Mr. Smollet and rapidly making notes. There was evidently some fun in store, and the House swiftly became crowded. As for Mr. Smollett, what he undertook to prove was that the late Premier had "organized a dissolution in secret and sprung it upon the House." He variously described his conduct as "indecent," "utter wantonness," "a device" "an artifice," "a plot," "a pious fraud," and as "sharp practice more likely to have come from an unscrupulous attorney's office than from a Cabinet of English gentlemen." Finally he observed that "the startagem had recoiled on the head of the trickster."

This was very coarse, and the House, which even on the Liberal benches, was not inclined to defend Mr. Gladstone arraigned on this deadly sin, rebuked Mr. Smollett with angry cries of "Order!" When Mr. Gladstone rose, he was pale with passion, and proceeded in an elaborate and eloquent speeches and make an end of the truculent member. That he succeeded is perhaps not a matter that history will care to record to his credit. A fly can inevitably be broken on the wheel; but there is always a question whether it were necessary to put in action such machinery for such a purpose. This eagerness for the fray, and this unfortunate inability to disregard later periods of the Parliament to make its recurdes of noteworthy. It has served the purpose of many an obscure member, from Mr. Scarlett to Mr. Chaplin, to draw upon himself a little notice by attacking the too sensitive giant.

John Kelley's Irish in New York are opposed to Tilden; Schutz's Germans in Ohio are opposed to Grant; the Chinese are opposed to Dennis Kearney; Blaire and Shurman are opposed to each other Bob Ingersoll is opposed to heaven and hell; neighbors dont like their surroundings—and what in the name of posterity, are we to say about "the situation?"—Ex.

WASHINGTON.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS OF THE 46TH CONGRESS.

The Desk on Which Jefferson Wrote the Declaration of Independance.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—At the expiration of the morning hour the Senate resumed the consideration of the Army bill. The reading of the bill was interrupted by a message from the President informing the Senate and House that the heirs of the late Joseph Coolidge, of Boston, desired to present to the United States the Desk on which Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. A joint resolution was adopted by the House accepting the gift and thanking the donors was passed without division. The consideration of the Army bill was then resumed.

Senator Blaire then moved to strike out the section relating to the use of the Army at the polls was rejected. Yeas 20, nays 28. Senator Blaine then offered an amendment prohibiting the carrying of weapons at the polls by any one under a penalty of a fine and imprisonment.

The Chair ruled that this amendment was not in order in as much as it introduced new legislation. The Republicans then offered several amendments intended to break the force of the army at the polls, section it by giving it such a construction as not to prevent the use of the army on election day in manner and for purposes prescribed by the existing laws, all these amendments were rejected by the same vote. Yeas 29, nays 19.

Among them was the following offered by Edmunds: But this section shall not be held to apply to any case in which under the constitution of United States the President may employ the military power of Goos, in the faithful execution of the laws. Blaine made another effort to get in a differently worded version of his amendment relative to carrying of weapons at the polls, but it was ain ruled out of order. The bill was then read the third time and passed. Yeas 28, nays 18.

On motion of Mr. Saulsbury the resolution reported from the committee on privilages and elections declaring Mr. Spofford, entitled to the seat now held by Mr. Kellogg, were taken up and Mr. Bailey of Tennessee, obtained the floor without opening the debate however. Senate ajourned.

HOUSE.

A rather singular scene occured in the House this morning. In the Record there appears a speech in blank verse entitled "The Immortals," which copyrighted by Downey, of Wyoming, and which purports to be in support of his bill povding for the painting of Biblical pictures on the walls of the Capitol.

Mr. Garfield called attention to this and moved that the speech be referred to the Committee on Rules, and to inquire whether it is competent for the member to copy-right his speech, printing out at the same time the dangers which might attend such practice.

Downey replied that he had the opinion of the Librarian of Congress and upon the completion of his copyrighting in his work and he had no objection however to Mr. Garfield's motion.

Mr. Conger however did oppose it in a rather amusing speech in which he intimated that Mr. Garfield was envious of the rising young poet. The yeas and nays were ordered on Mr. Garfield's motion. During roll call the members separated into groups, singular speech being the sole topic of conversation.

The President sent the following nominations to the Senate to-day, Edgar M. Marble, of Michigan, to be Commissioner of Patents, and Joseph K. McCammon, of Pennsylvania, to be Assistant Attorney General of the United States.

Senator Morrill submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Printing to take such measures as shall exclude from the permanent Congressional Record what purports to be the copyrighted argument of territorial delegate which appears in the Record today, but was in fact never delivered in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Saulsbury thought that the House having authorized the poem to be printed the Senate could not in courtesy interfere.

Mr. Morrill said the Senate would have to bear a part of the reputation good or bad of authorizing this production.

Mr. Hamlin said the Committee on Printing was a Joint Committee and nothing could be done without consulting the House. He hoped this affair would result in the future exclusion of speeches and other productions not actually delivered in Congress.

Mr. Morrill said that since offering the resolution he had learned that the House was considering the matter. He therefore withdrew his resolution.

A meeting of the Ways and Means Committee of the House was held this morning, but the sub-Committee not being prepared reports no action was taken upon any of the tariff questions before the committee. Mr. Garfields motion was agreed to. Yeas 119, nays 105.

DECAY.

BY ARTHUR HUGH CLOUGH.

My wind has turned to bitter north,
That was so soft a south before;
My sky, that shone so sunny bright,
With foggy gloom is clouded o'er,
My gay green leaves are yellow black
Upon the dark autumnal floor;
For love, departed once, come back
No more again, no more.

A roofless ruin lies my home,
For winds to blow and rains to pour.
One frosty night befell—and lo!
I find my summer days are o'er.
The heart bereaved, of why and how
Unknowing, knows that yet before
It had what e'en to memory now
Returns no more, no more.

The Famous Swimmer.

Wilmington Review.

Capt. Paul Boyton, the famous swimmer, passed through the city last night for Charleston, where he will exhibit on Friday. He proposed, if the necessary arrangements can be made here, to stop over in Wilmington on Saturday, but we think it doubtful if he gives an exhibition here. Saturday is the only day at his command now as he is to exhibit Norfolk on Monday and is then obliged to go North to fill engagements.

DANIEL CONRY, of Erie, Penn., has gone raving mad over the "fifteen puzzle." He is a strictly temperate man, a devoted husband and kind father. For several days he neglected his business and applied himself constantly to the game, until his brain gave way under the attempt to master the 13, 15, 14. On Monday morning he grew violent seized his infant child and and was dumping it on a hot stove when the neighbors rushed in. He was overpowered, and a body of police carried him to jail, where he now lies, a raving maniac, scratching the game on the wall and shouting "fifteen, thirteen, fourteen."

How would Seymour and Bayard do for a ticket?

BEAUFORT COUNTY Democratic Convention meets in Washington May, 29th

THE Mobilians are luxuriating in the luscious stawberry, at fifteen cents per quart.

THE DEMOCRATIC Congressional Convention for the Third District will meet at Fayetteville, Wednesday June 2nd.

EFFORTS are being made to build a telegraph line between Newberne and Plymouth. This is an enterprise much needed. Success to the undertaking.

IT IS believed that the two thirds rule will be approved and adopted by the National Democratic Convention. Every Democratic State Convention that has given expression to their views on this subject favor the continuance of the old rule.

THE Shelby Aurora says; The Revenue laws has become a curse in that section, and are denounced by the Republicans themselves. Some of the Revenue officers are men who are unfit for any position whatever.

THE SUCCESSFUL growing of coffee in South Florida is an assured fact. The Commissioner of Agriculture has awarded to that State the premium which was offered for the first pound of coffee grown in the open air in this country.

OUR COTEMPORARY of the Torchlight says, that the nomination for Congress in this District lies between Judge Cox and Mr. Manning. The Judge seems to have the inside track so far. Mr. Manning has many warm friends in the District. He is a man of purity. It fills us with pride to know we have such men from whom to choose our Representatives.

WE LEARN from the Oxford Torchlight that the Granville Railroad Company has been organized with Col. W. F. Beasley as President A corps of engineers are engaged in making the survey of the route. The people along the proposed route are said to be subscribing liberally. Col. Beasley is eminently speaking, a railroad man, and we suppose this road will soon be built.

'TIS SAID that the game of from 25 to 40 will puzzle the census taker more than the little game at 13-14 15. He will be awful puzzled when a maiden lady with cork-screw curls and false teeth tells him that she was "born in 1860, and he can count it up himself." He'll be ready to swear that she has jumped the "15" from the lower left hand corner.

THE WILMINGTONIANS are agitating the question of building a railroad from that city to the sound. This would be a nice thing for that city. The Star is jubilant over the prospect of the early completion of the road, and says the success of the project is now assured. It is designed to erect pavilions, bath houses and everything convenient for pleasure seekers at the seaside.

WE learn from the Orphans' Friend that there are 231 working lodges; initiated 216; died 108. Number of Masons reported in good standing 6,542. This is taken from the report made to the State Grand Lodge of Masons, at its last session. The Orphans' Asylum at Oxford is the successful child of this benevolent institution. It is said to be in a prosperous condition.

THE N. Y. WORLD calls it the two "Rump Conventions" and heads a leader thusly: "The Regular Tilden faction re-elects a State Committee and rnies out the party. The "Bolting" Democrats make vain efforts after him and success."

We do not think this spirit will enter National questions—at leat we trust not.

HON. DEWITT C. WEST, one of Gov Seymour's confidential friends, confirms the following dispatch to the Boston Herald:

"After consultation with Gov. Seymour, Mr. West declares that no living man has authority to decline the nomination for him. Although not a candidate in the sense of seeking the office, Mr. West confidently believes that, if the nomination is unanimously tendered to Gov. Seymour, he will comply with public sentiment and accept the nomination. Gov. Dorsheimer and Judge Sturgis called on Gov. Seymour to-day in the interest of Bayard."

THE two New York Conventions, regular Democratic and Tammany, met in the city of Syracus on Tuesday. Propositions for unitising the two factions were introduced but no result was reached. The Committee on Resolutions of the Tammany Convention in reporting "the address deplores the division of the party in New York, which, it says, they could not prevent and cannot heal without sacrificing self-respect and the Democratic cause. "This unhappy division," the address says, "results solely from the determined and persistent efforts of Samuel J. Tilden to secure the Democratic nomination to the presidency. For this end he has conspired and contrived to get control of party organization, which he has converted into personal machines and used in high-handed and unscrupulous ways, in total disregard of the wishes of the people."

It is thought that should any other man than Tilden be nominated, that New York will go solid for the Democratic nominee.

The Tilden men triumphed in the regular convention.

WHAT KIND OF MEN TO NOMINATE.

The Democracy not only of North Carolina but of the whole country is about to enter upon a campaign which almost means vitality itself. Our success depends largely upon the men chosen for our standard bearers. The selections should be made with the greatest circumspection and prudence as to their fitness. Any blundering may be fatal to success. Personal favorites should not be allowed to come between us and our duty. Independentism must be frowned down upon wherever it raises its hydra head. We must crystalize our strength and stand firm to our principles. We think in making nominations reference should be had as to services rendered the Democratic party. After a man has labored for the success of his party, i. e. given his money and time to the cause, and been instrumental in causing good results, surely if he is competent, he should be remembered when the political slate is being made up. Such men are among us, let us seek them out. We want positive men. and honest men whose political skirts are clean. Conventions will soon be held in every Congressional district. Let us send a solid Democratic delegation to Washington. We can do it if we nominate the right men. The honest voters of the country have had a surfeit of professional politicians and wire workers. We reiterate what we've said above, that much depends upon the kind of leaders we select. Let us be cautious and prudent.

Recalled to Life.

Resuscitation of a Convict Who Had Been Hanged.

A most extraordinary case of resuscitation is reported to have taken place at Raab, Hungary, on the 14th inst. Raab is about 67 miles from Pesth and was formerly a fortified city. It is built on the river of the same name and is a place of some commercial importance. The story that comes from there reads more like one of the grim contes drolatiques of Balzac than an occurrence of the present day. A young convict named Takacs, who had murdered two women, was hanged. He was about 23 years of age.

After the body was cut down and examined by the physicians, life was pronounced extinct. As a scientific experiment the body was subjected to an electro-galvanic current, and after a few hours signs of life were perceptible. The resuscitated convict completely recovered the use of his senses, and his first actions were of violence towards the prison officials by whom he was surrounded. He soon began to suffer from congestion of the brain and became delirious during the night. He made repeated attacks upon the keepers and complained of violent pains, asking from time to time for milk and water. Death released him finally from his sufferings yesterday morning. The entire medical faculty in this city is considerably exercised over the case.

It Wasn't William.

Detroit Free Press.

A man who had his coat on his arm and his hat in his hand, yesterday entered a butcher shop on Woodward avenue and began:

"Say, sir, one of your infernal carts knocked me down on Park street an hour ago, and I'm going to have satisfaction!"

"One of my carts? I guess not. William! William!"

William made his appearance from the back room, and the butcher said:

"William, this man accuses you of running him down with the cart this morning on Park street."

"I don't think," was the reply.

"Well, I know it!" shouted the man as he threw down his hat.

"Whereabouts on Park?"

"At the corner of High!"

"Ah! then, it couldn't have been," said the driver. "Here is the route I took; I first went up Woodward avenue and run over a boy at the coroner of Alfred street. Then I went down Charlotte and took a wheel off a carriage. Down at the corner of Cass I run down a boy and a velocipede. I came down Cass to Sproat, and out again to Woodward, where I expect I ran over two women and a horse, and then came directly here. It couldn't have been me, sir."

"Then who was it?"

"Indeed, I couldn't say, sir, but a few doors above this a butcher who has three carts. If it was him he'll own right up and be glad to see you, for he's keeping a record of the killed and wounded to show off over the rest of us. You'd better try him sir."

Where the Money Goes.

Eighty millions of gold has been received in the United States from foreign countries during the past year. Our government has been coining silver at a rapid rate—as much as two millions in a month—and yet the great operators in Wall street and financiers elsewhere are asking where the money goes. An exchange undertakes to solve the conundrum by stating that the revival of domestic and foreign trade has absorbed a great many millions for its use, and that it has been the custom for the New York banks to disburse many more millions every fall to move the cotton crop. This heretofore has only been a temporary advance of the money to the cotton shippers, as was that of an equally large sum which went to the Northwest to move the grain crop. These were only short loans made by New York to the country. The last season, it is said, has reversed all this. Of the millions sent South to move cotton not more than two thirds has come back, the other third remaining in Southern hands at present. Of the much larger sum sent West and Northwest for the grain and pork men a very large balance is now in the pockets of the farmers, where it is likely to remain. For the first time in many years it is remarked that these farmers can show a respectable surplus in cash for the year's crop, after paying labor and store bills.—Charleston News.

TUTT'S PILLS

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache generally over the right eye, Restlessness with fitful dreams, highly colored Urine.

NEW ARRIVALS!

With just such goods as the people want, and it gives me pleasure to say to thousands of my customers that I have received my Spring and Summer stock, which is unusually large and attractive, as each and every department is full from cellar to garret with goods bought by myself in person from the best manufactures and importers in this country.

And allow me to say to you that my Dress Goods Department is well worth your special attention as the assortment is very large and attractive—as it is well filled with goods from low price to fine fabrics, as well as with many new and beautiful styles Dress Goods. Also with Buttons and Trimmings to match.

Piece Goods Department

Is well filled with Cassimers Cashmorets, Tweeds Cottonades and Linen goods, just the goods for spring and summer wear, and will be sold at low prices so as to meet the wants of the people.

My Staple Goods Department

Is in every way complete and no doubt the largest and most complete assortment in the city, and as for selling them at the right prices, Why, I am just the man that does that very thing.

Yankee Notion

And fancy goods department, you must not forget, as it is well filled with many new and beautiful goods, that every body wants such as Hosiery, Handkerchiefs, Silk and Lace Neck Ties, Gloves, and Silk Mits, Ribbons, Collars and Cuffs, Hamburg Edgings, Parasols, &c.

In fact thousands of indispensible articles, just the goods for the season.

My Shoe Department

Is one of my specialities. Why Creeche's is the place where thousands of people buy shoes, Mens and Boys, Ladies Misses and Children. Buy shoes at Creech's, as they find the style they want, and at the right prices.

My Hat Department

TRADE MARK. Seminal Pastille

An entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz., Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease. The use of the remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life. The cause of disease is removed, and the tone of the system restored, and it now a permanent system. There is no nostrum about this preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give perfect satisfaction. It is endorsed by the Medical Profession as by the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble. The Remedy is put up in neat boxes, of three sizes. No. 1 (lasting a month), $2. No. 2 (sufficient to effect a permanent cure in ordinary cases), $3. No. 3 (large size, usually sufficient for the cases of life, and in all severe cases), $5. Sent by mail, securely packed, on receipt of price. Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations which will convince the most skeptical that they can be cured in their own homes, and fully explaining the nature of the disease, and the means to be used for the cure of life, and in all severe cases). Send stamp for circular.

Cuticura

ave Achieved the most noted success of any Medicines of Modern Times.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter have never doubted the specific properties of Cuticura, Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap, for the speedy, permanent, and economical cure of Humors of the Blood, Skin and Scalp. They are however, astonished at their universal success; for it was to be expected that in the hands of some they could fail solely from spasmodic or ignorant use of them.

They are enabled to say without fear of contradiction that no remedies ever achieved in the short space of one year the number of wonderful cures performed by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

SALT RAHUM,

Covering the Body for Ten Years, Permanently Cured.

LAW OFFICE OF CHAS. HOUGHTON,
17 Congress Street, Boston, Feb 28, 1878.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen,—I feel it a duty to inform you, and through you all who are interested to know the fact, that a most disagreeable and obstinate case Salt Rheum or Eczema, which has been under my personal observation from its first appearance to the present time,—about ten (10) years,—covering the greater portion of the patient's body, and limbs with its peculiar irritating and itching scab, and to which all the known methods of treating such disease had been applied without benefit, has completely disappeared, leaving a clean and healthy skin, under a few days of profuse application of CUTICURA.

I can and do heartily advise all similarly afflicted to try the remedy which has been so effectual in this case.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. HOUGHTON.

Liver Complaint.

And Dyspepsia Treated by the Resolvent, Gains 5 1-2 pounds on One Bottle.

GENTLEMEN,—I have had Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, with running sores on the side of my neck, for ten years. Doctors did no good. I have been spending for eight years and it did me no good. Everything I ate distressed me. I got reduced from 179 to 132 pounds. At last I tried the RESOLVENT and it helped me right off, and on one bottle I gained five and one-half pounds. It is doing the business, and I am going for it strong.

Yours truly,
JOHN H. ROY
414 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., Nov. 15, 1878.

NOTE.—Cuticura is admirable assisted in cases of extreme physical weakness, or when the virus of Scrofula is known to lurk in the system, by the internal use of the Cuticura Resolvent, without doubt the most powerful blood purifier and liver stimulant in the world.

Cuticura Soap is an elegant toilet and medicinal assistant to Cuticura in the treatment of all external ailments. For chapped hands, rough skin and tan, sunburn, and the lesser skin troubles, it is unsurpassed, while as a soap for the toilet, the dispensable as a soap for the toilet, the nursery and bath it is the most elegant, refreshing, and healing before the public.

These great remedies succeed where all others heretofore in use fail because they possess new and original properties never before successfully combined in medicine. The Cuticura Remedies are prepared by Weeks & Potter, Chemists and Druggists, Boston, and sold by all Druggists. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes, containing two and one-half times the quantity of small, $1. Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cents per cake; by mail, 30 cents; 3 cakes, 75 cents.

Valuable City lot For Sale.

On Tuesday the 4th day of May next, at 12 o'clock, I shall sell at public sale, at the the court house door in the city of Raleigh, to the highest bidder, FOR CASH, the valuable lot and two story brick store house that was conveyed to Benjamin F. Harris by Benjamin A. Cheatham and James T. Cheatham, in a mortgage deed bearing date the 31st day of October A. D., 1873, and on record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Wake county. Said store house is situate on the corner of market square, on Wilmington street, fronting market square, and running though from market square to the next street. It is the store house in which B. F. Cheatham & Bro. (and afterwards John A. Cheatham) did business.

Said house and lot will be sold under a decree of the Superior Court of Wake county, subject to the confirmation of court and no possession to be given until the sale of the property is confirmed. And the purchaser complies with the terms of sale. This lot is valuable and buyers of real estate would do well to examine it before the day of sale.

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, Boston, entitled THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; or SELF-PRESERVATION. Exhausted vitality, nervous and physical debility, or vitality impaired by the errors of youth or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

Two hundredth edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. Three hundred pages, more than 50 valuable prescriptions for all forms of prevailing disease, the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in French cloth; price only $1, sent by mail post-paid.

The London Lancet says: "No person should be without this valuable book. The author is a noble benefactor."

An illustrated sample sent to all on receipt of 6 cents for postage.

The author refers, by permission, to Jesse R. Fisher, president; W. J. P. Ingraham, vice-president; W. Paine, M. D.; C. Gauntt, M. D.; H. J. Doucet, M. D.; R. I. Kline, M. D.; J. R. Holcomb, M. NEWSINGS.

——What lovely nights.

——Cool for the Season.

——Revenue receipts yesterday $6,823.87.

——A happp new year to you Mr. Visitor.

——$21,0000 in old bonds received ta the Treasry yesterday.

——Big crowd out at the Milburnie picnic yesterday.

——Dr Burkhead is in the city and will spend a while, with his family.

——Mr. A. M. Goldsmith, of the Charleston Segar Factory is in the city.

——The good work at the Methodis and Baptist churches still continues

—— There will be no service at the church of the Good Shepherd this morning.

——J. H. Mills Suprintendent of the Orphan Asylum was in the city yesterday.

——"Come where my love lies dreaming" is all very good, provided she does'nt snore.

——The reason a Zula belle is like a prophet of old, is because she has'nt much on'er in her own country.

——Willie Mangum, alittle white boy was bound to Jubal Emery day before yesterday by the Probate Judge.

——Cotton receipts light yesterday. Middlog 11¼cents. strict low middling 11½ cents. low middling 11⅛ cents. Market quiet.

——"A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men," we had rather have ajuvinile chicken in ours.

——A special meeting of the Raleigh Chapter for instructions will be held to night at 7½ o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

——Mrs McPhurson will meet with the children of Edenton street M. E. Church At the church this after noon at 4 o'clock ——A regular meeting of the Raleigh Light Infantry is called to night by the Captain, at the Armory. Business of importance is on foot.

——A couple for too much crook in the elbow up before the Mayor yesterday. 12 hours in the guard house straightened; their arms. Walter Blackwell, colored up for trespass, a small dose was given him.

——The Govenor respited George Galloway, colored of Mecklenburg County yesterday. He was to have been hung on May, 7th respited till July 2nd. Ain't this a new departure, Governor?

——A fire broke out yerterday afternoon in the honse occupied by Col. S. P. Haughton on corner of Blount and Martin street, caused by a foul chimney. Owing to the well directed effors of our efficient fire department no damage was done. For promptness and good work our Fire Department can't be beat.

——Miss Eliese Bragg of Petersburg Va, the daughter of the late distinguished Governor Bragg, of this State, is in the city, the guest of Mr. P. F. Pescud Sr. at whose place she will be pleased to see her old friends and acquaintances.

——The following beautiful lines were spoken at the decoration of the Confederate dead at Richmond Va.

"On Fame's eternal camping-ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead."

——We regret to learn that the Rev. John S. Watkins of this city, received a Telegram on yesterday, announcing the sudden death from meningitis of his sister, Miss Alice Watkins at the residence of her Father Mr Richard Watkins of Charlotte County Virginia.

——Yeargan, Petty & Co are making a special feature of the wholesale branch of their business, and are meeting with adecided success in this line. They claim on yesterday to have made the largest sale to a single customer ever made by a Dry Goods house in this city.

—— Our compositor butchered up the following so badly in yesterday's issue that in justice to ourselves we republish it in to-days paper. "Up to the present writing the following are the fruits of the series of metings was being held in the Salisbury Street Baptist Church. Fifty-two conversions, twenty-seven received for baptism, and twenty baptised. At the Bible reading this morning, the subject to be considered is "Seeking Christ so as to find Him." To-night the subject to be preached from is the all importrnt one of "What shall I do to be Saved?" An absence of excitement in these meetings make them remarkable from any others we've ever seen. Appeals are made to the reason and not the feelings alone. We've observed that where there is great excitement from any cause, that the effect usually leaves with or soon after the cause that produces it. The Rev. Dr. Teasdale a divine with an experience in the cause of Christ covering a period of more than half a century, has been an indefatigaco-worker with the able Dr. Skinner, the Pastor. We wish thee good and valiant soldiers of the Lord many victories over the enemy of mankind, and may they be instrumental in the salvation of many souls from damnation, before this meeting closes." Last night there was a larger congregation than usual, and more inquirers after religion than at any one time since the revival began. The converts rang from those who are just on the threshold of life to hoary age. From the bud to the matured rose. The Bible reading will be short this morning as the ordinance of baptism will be administerd to several candidates for membership.

The School History Of N. C.

Excellent reports have been received from teachers who have introduced this book into their schools. They say that it is surprising to see how great interest pupils take in studying N, C. History and how eager they are to learn it. We do not believe it will be long before "Moore's School History of N, C." will be in every school in the state.

Municipal Nomination.

A meeting of the citizens of the town of Forestville, Wake county, on the 20th inst., for the purpose of nominating a Democratic ticket for Town officers for the present year. The meeting was called to order by D. W. Allen, Esq., On motion Dr. A. R. Vann, was elected Chairman, and J. S. Patterson, Secretary. On motion the following gentleman were nominated. For Mayor, David W. Allen, and for Alderman, Dr. L. Chapell, G. S. Patterson, Dr. A. R. Vann and Peter Durham. The meeting then adjourned sine die.

Eminently Appropriate.

A young lady sends the following, which is certainly in a high degree appropriate:

"Wanted, thirty-six young men, more or less, all shapes and sizes, from the tall and graceful, with hair sufficient on his upper lip to stuff a cushion, down to the little bow-legged, freckled-faced corrot-headed upstart. The object is to form a gaping corps, to be in attendance at the church doors, at the close of divine service next Sunday evening, to stare at the ladies as they leave church, and to make delicate and gentlemanly remarks about their dress, etc. All who wish to join the above corps are requested to appear on and about the steps of the church doors, at the above day mentioned, when they will be duly inspected, their names, personal appearance, quality of brains, etc., will be registered in a book for that purpose. To prevent a general rush it may be well to state that no one will be enlisted who possesses the intellectual capacity of a well-bread monkey.

Even natnre, in this age, bows before the power of gold. Dublin society speaks with rapture of the wonderful floral decorations at two balls lately given by Lady Oliver Gninness. Bowers of roses and mossy banks of full-tinted, fragrant summer flowers. And all this in March, before the palest of primroses had shown themselves.

General W. S. Hancock.

Philadelphia Times.

Hancock, in personal appearaoce, is tall, well formed and very handsome. His height cannot be less than six feet two inches, and he weighs fully two hundred and forty pounds. He would make the finest looking President who ever sat in the White House, except, possibly, George Washington. His form towers above other men, and he attracts attention by his mere looks wherever he goes. His eyes are blue and have a benignant and mild expression when in repose, but inspiring when in danger. His manner is dignified and knightly, and he is courtesy itself. He is always magnetic, and draws men to him by his kindliness and gentle interest in their affairs. His sympathies are easily aroused and he becomes intensly concerned for the sorrows and misfortunes of others, striving in every way to relieve them, as though their troubles were his own. Hancock's kindness to his subordinates alway's won not only their love, but also their confidence, and caused them to rely on him as a friend as well as a commander. He gave a man a good opinion of himself, and made each one feel that he was of more importance than he ever before suspected. It was this which caused him to have such a power over his officers and men in battle, and made them prefer rather to die than forfeit the good opinion of their leader

General Hancock had two chidren, Russell Hancock and Ada Elizabeth Hancock. The latter died in New York of typhoid fever, when 18 years of age. She was a young lady of great promise. Russel Hancock, the General's only son, is living and is a planter in Mississippi.

A volume would not contain an account of all the heroic deeds of a man like Hancock; his is a noble character, and it is a pleasure to write for such a man. A glorious soldier, a steadfast friend, a useful citizen, he is all that is noble, manly and brave in poor fallen humanity. If the Democratic Convention, to meet in Cincinnati May next, nominates him for President, thousands upon thousands of old soldiers will gladly vote for him, and almost every citizen in the land will think twice before refusing his suffrage to such a candidate as Winfield Scott Hancock, the patriotic soldier, accomplished gentleman, consummate general and fair-minded statesman.

What a Pity

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

Rev. Sylvanus Cobb thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman:—We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button."

And duriug the process of teething, its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.

This is not a KING CURE-ALL. But is only good for Neuralgia and Headache. For these troubles it is the only specific known. Sold by all the leading druggists.

It is great news indeed that there is at last a remedy (Warner's Safe Nervine) which will relieve all kinds of pain and give rest and sleep without injury to the system. The discovrer of this remedy is considered the most skillfulnerve doctor in the world.

Iron and Alum Mass

This most excellent remedy is becoming more popular with our people every day. It is one of the few medicines that improves on acquaintance—the more one knows of it, the more its virtues are appreciated. Everybody who has given it a fair trial, speak well of it. Our druggists sell large quantities of it. People are not afraid to use a medicine that they know to be efficient for their ailments, and at the same time harmless in its nature. Read what is so aptly said of it, in another column of this paper. Truth is mighty and will prevail. feb27-tf

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness, it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anemia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat diseases and consumptioh, are among the common results. Therefore, if you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood, do not hesitate, but employ Golden Medical Discovery which enriches the blood and radically cures those affections by striking at the root of the evil and removing the cause.

For all bronchial, throat, and lung affections, severe lingering cough, weak lungs, consumption in its early stages, asthma and kindred affections, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the soverign remedy, and has outrivaled all its competitors. It is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. Druggists sell it.

COMPOUND OXYGEN NOT A DRUG

A NEW TREATMENT for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Headache, Debility, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, and all Chronic and Nervous Disorders.

ACTS DIRECTLY upon the great nervous and organic centres, and cures by a natural process of revitalization.

HAS EFFECTED REMARKABLE CURES, which are attracting wide attention.

HAS BEEN USED BY Rt. Rev. John J. Keane, Bishop of Richmond, Va., Hon. Wm. D. Kelley, T. S. Arthur, and others, who have been largely benefited and to whom we refer by permission.

IS STRONGLY ENDORSED: "We have the most unequivocal testimony to its curative power from many persons of high character and intelligence."—Lutheran Observer. "The cures which have been obtained by this new treatment seem more like miracles than cases of natural healing."—Arthur's Home Magazine. "There is no doubt as to the genuineness and positive results of this treatment."—Boston Journal of Commerce.

SENT FREE! A Treatise on Compound Oxygen, giving the history of this new discovery and a large record of most remarkable cures. Write for it. Address

THE OXYGEN HOME TREATMENT contains two months' supply, with inhaling apparatus and full directions for use.
